The Schaefer Center Presents

RHIANNON GIDDENS

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 24, 2015  7PM

SCHAEFER CENTER FOR THE PERFORMING ARTS
BOONE, NC
Rhiannon Giddens

It was toward the end of the T Bone Burnett–curated September 2013 Another Day, Another Time concert at New York City’s Town Hall—a celebration of the early ’60s folk revival that had inspired the Joel and Ethan Coen film Inside Llewyn Davis—when singer Rhiannon Giddens indisputably stole the show. Performing Odetta’s “Water Boy” with, as The New York Times put it, “the fervor of a spiritual, the yips of a folk holler, and the sultry insinuation of the blues,” Giddens brought the star-studded audience to its feet. She was the talk of the lobby during intermission as those attendees unfamiliar with her Grammy Award–winning work as a member of African-American folk interpreters Carolina Chocolate Drops wondered who exactly Rhiannon Giddens was, with her elegant bearing, prodigious voice, and fierce spirit.

On her Nonesuch solo debut Tomorrow Is My Turn, Giddens and Burnett revisit “Water Boy,” its Odetta-arranged work-song rhythm serving as both provocation and a statement of power. Giddens delivers an equally thunderous rendition, one made all the more striking when placed between a gentle, ruminative interpretation of Dolly Parton’s “Don’t Let It Trouble Your Mind” and a version of Hank Cochran’s “She’s Got You,” popularized by Patsy Cline, that Giddens imbues with “an old-timey R&B vibe,” abetted by Carolina Chocolate Drops band-mate Hubby Jenkins. The breadth of musical vision on Tomorrow Is My Turn fulfills the promise of that brief but stunning star turn at Town Hall. The album incorporates gospel, jazz, blues, and country, plus a hint of proto-rock and roll, and Giddens displays an emotional range to match her dazzling vocal prowess throughout.

The life that Giddens explores at the climax of Tomorrow Is My Turn is her own creative one, on the lilting, self-penned ballad “Angel City.” Though she regards herself far more as singer than songwriter, “Angel City,” composed in the course of a single night during the recording of the Burnett-helmed The New Basement Tapes project, fits perfectly at the close of the set, gently paying homage to the elder artists whose work comprise the rest of the album. “It was these women, these artists, who had helped me, who had come with me on this journey, and here are lyrics that represented that.”

Tomorrow Is My Turn was recorded in Los Angeles and Nashville, with a multi-generational group of players whom Burnett assembled.
Among them are fiddle player Gabe Witcher and double bassist Paul Kowert of label-mates Punch Brothers; percussionist Jack Ashford of Motown’s renowned Funk Brothers; inventive drummer and Burnett stalwart Jay Bellerose; veteran folk-blues guitarist Colin Linden; legendary backup singer Tata Vega; and Nashville session great, bassist Dennis Crouch. Giddens enthuses, “We had Dennis and Paul on stand-up bass at the same time on some of these tracks. They are all ‘musicians’ musicians’ and they did cool stuff they don’t always get the opportunity to play. It was a bit of a challenge for them too, all these different kinds of music; every day was something new. We’d start the day by watching the original inspiration for the song on YouTube, and then we would go cut it. They were a diverse group of people, but it felt like a real band.”

The songs here, says Giddens, “are all facets of the human condition.” Taken together, they answer the question Twyla Tharp posed at the beginning of Giddens’ solo adventure. Tomorrow Is My Turn is a composite portrait of “Ruby,” of America, and of Giddens herself, whose turn is clearly right now.

—Michael Hill
The Schaefer Center Presents (2015-16 Season)

Upcoming Events

Lakota Sioux Indian Dance Theatre
Educating, entertaining and enlightening audiences all over the world, while preserving and honoring a living history and oral tradition that is central to American Indian society
October 7, 7pm

An Evening with David Sedaris
NPR humorist and best-selling author of Naked, Me Talk Pretty One Day, When You Are Engulfed in Flames and Let's Explore Diabetes With Owls
October 23, 7pm

Jason Isbell
American singer-songwriter and guitarist best known for his solo career and as a former member of the Drive-By Truckers
November 7, 7pm

American Shakespeare Center: Julius Caesar
Profoundly moving, breathtaking, and deeply human...a thrill ride of betrayal, violence, and perhaps most surprisingly — love
January 29, 7pm

American Shakespeare Center: Henry V
The story of England's hero-king and the greatest upset in European military history; Shakespeare's finale to his great history plays
January 30, 7pm

Dr. John & the Nite Trippers
Unique and authentic New Orleans, boogie-woogie jazz praised for its funky, bluesy influence on rock
February 13, 7pm

CONTRA-TIEMPO Urban Latin Dance Theater
Choreography that fuses Salsa, Afro-Cuban, and contemporary urban and abstract dance theater, to create an invigorating blend of physically intense and politically astute performance work
April 22, 7pm

For more information and tickets: theschaefercenter.org
800.841.ARTS / 828.262.4046
Thank you to our sponsors!

The Schaefer Center Presents is sponsored by Supporting sponsorship provided by

Mission statement

The Schaefer Center Presents supports the teaching mission of Appalachian State University by offering a diverse array of music, dance and theatre events designed to enrich the cultural, educational and economic landscape of the campus and surrounding region. By creating memorable performance experiences and related educational and outreach activities, the series promotes the power and excitement of the live performance experience; provides a “window on the world” through the artistry of nationally and internationally renowned artists; and showcases some of the finest artists of our region.
Keep your weekends interesting. Listen. Love.

Saturdays

After Wait Wait ... Don’t Tell Me! & This American Life, tune in for:

Radiolab @ 1pm
TED Radio Hour @ 2pm
The Dinner Party Download @ 3pm

Sundays

After A Prairie Home Companion & Wait Wait ... Don’t Tell Me! tune in for:

Studio 360 @ 3pm
Triad Arts Weekend @ 4pm
Sound Opinions @ 6pm
American Routes @ 7pm
Our State supports the North Carolina Presenters Consortium (NCPC) with a monthly listing in the magazine of exciting professional arts and entertainment events.
Your Classical Companion

Whether you’re driving to work, tackling a big project, cooking dinner for your family, or simply relaxing after a long day, WDAV is here to keep you company, anytime, anywhere.

89.9 fm
wdav.org
CLASSICAL PUBLIC RADIO
A service of Davidson College, supported by listeners like you.

WDAV Classical Public Radio.
Music for Life.